Mrs. Stowe's "Vindication of Lady Byron" will probably be ready about the middle of next week. The first volume of Sir Henry Bulwer's Life of Lerd Palmerston, compiled from family papers and noinding his lordship's private diary, is nearly ready

Harper & Brothers have reprinted in pamphlet form, with illustrations, Mr. Justin McCarthy's movel, "My Enemy's Daughter," which has just been finished in their magazine; and "Bound to John Company; or, the Adventures and Misadventures of Robert Ainsleigh," which has been running for some time in The Bazaar.

"Sadlier's Catholic Directory, Almanae, and Ordo, for 1870, is just published. It contains a full list of the R. C. clergy in the United States, the British provinces, and Ireland, a list of the bishops and arch-bishops in England, a register of the cardinals, and a variety of other religious and statistical informa

The new Woman's Journal is to appear in Boston on the 1st of January under the editorship of Mrs. Livarmere. It will be a weekly paper, in a quarto form, a little larger than Harper's Weekly, except that it will consist of only eight pages. Mrs. Julia Ward Howe and Col. T. W. Higgmson are among the regular weekly contributors, and William Lloyd Garrison, Lucy Stone, Mrs. Severance, and others will write occasionally.

Every Saturday adopts, in the second number of its new series, the plan of giving some account of the artists from whom its illustrations are taken. This is a good idea; but we are sorry the frank acknowledgment of the sources from which its reading matter has been borrowed has not been persevered in. The new number contains a two-page engraving of "Puritans Going to Church," from a picture by

The Practitioner, just received from Macmillan's New-York agency, in reviewing Dr. William A. Hammond's translation of Moritz Meyer's "Electricity in mend's translation of Moritz Meyers" Electricity in the Relations to Practical Medicine," and the translation of Niemeyer's "Text Book of Practical Medition," by Drs. Humphreys and Hackley (both published this Winter by D. Appleton & Co.), remarks that "the Americans are decidedly ahead of the English in one important practical matter; they rapfully produce translations of all the best French and Convenient of the Company of the Convenient of the German medical works."

Macmillan & Co. have on sale at their branch sstablishment in Bleecker-st. two volumes of "A Sunday Library of Household Reading," which they are publishing in monthly numbers and quarterly volumes. These are a "Life of Alfred the Great," by the author of "Tom Brown's School Days," and "The Apostles of Mediaval Europe" by the Rev. G. F. Maclear, B. D. Of these attractive volumes, as well as a book of stories for children, by Mr. Knatch-bull, Hoggson, M. P. myllighed by the same house. bull-Hugessen, M. P., published by the same house, we hope to speak more fully at an early day.

Thirty years ago Mr. George Hill published-in this city, we think-a little volume of poetry, under the title "The Ruins of Athens, and other Poems." Semewhat enlarged, modified, and rebaptized, it is now given once more to the world as "Titania's Ban-quet, Pictures of Woman, and other Poems" (D. Ap-pleton & Co.). The principal piece in the collection is, as its title indicates, a sketch of fairy-land, and though it provokes continual comparison with a much greater poem, Mr. Hill has sufficient playfulness of fancy and happiness in versification to make of it a pleasant little composition. Most of the other poems are graceful in form and delicate in sentiment; and though the school to which they belong has possed away, they may still be read with grating. has passed away, they may still be read with gratin eation if not with enthusiasm.

"It having been generally conceded," says The Overland Monthly, "that the tourist who lays his band on California, save in the way of kindness, is a wretch to whom it would be base flattery to apply the endearing epithet of villain, the interior journalist will have no difficulty in answering the pleasant satire of Mrs. Calboun's letters to The New-York Tribune, particularly as the writer is a lone and unprotected woman. A general allusion to Susan B.
Anthony and strong-minded females, a hint of Miss Dickinson's fate, and a graceful assortment of rural pleasantries, will probably do the business. Should pleasantries, will probably do the business. Should be fail, however—and it is just possible—he can fall back on the pleasant incense of 'Dixon' of The Boston Advertiser, the smoke of whose sacrifice is contin-wally ascending from various parts of the State—it must be confessed, somewhat to the detriment of a clear view. Or, he may turn to Todd's book—Todd, who is sick of love, and who seems to have been stayed with flagous and comforted with large apples to a supersing extent. And then, there is somehold to to a surprising extent. And then, there is somebody who has been writing in the Revue des Deux Mondes

a pleasant son of France, who has gazed, perhaps too often, on the fascinations of the California fair. and has taken large and exhaustive views of our hats and coats and other things, which so largely make and coats and other things, which so largely make an society—from the Gallie view-point—on Montgomery-st., and don't like them. But he is a pleasant, hand-kissing, hat-lifting gentleman, and as such, we leave him to the kindness of the interior journalist." An entertaining literary gossip on the staff of The quoted, mentions a few particulars illustrating the benefit which English and foreign authors have derived from the International Copyright Convention between Great Britain and some of the continental States. Victor Hugo received £1,000 for the right of translating his latest novel into English. The well-known Tauchnitz editions are protected by copyright, but it does not appear that the German publisher has made very liberal payments to the English authors whom he reprints. Mr. Carlyle, for four volumes of his "Frederick the Great," received from Baron Tanchuitz only £225; Mr. Dickens, for his last novel "Our Mutual Friend," £50; Miss Muloch or her publishers, for a "Noble Life," £50; Mrs. Wood, for "Oswald Cray," £60; Miss Craik, for "Christian's Mistake," £50; Miss Kavanagh, for "Beatrice," £30; Mrs. Riddell, for "George Goith," £25; Miss Annie Thomas, for "On Gnard," £25; Miss Edwards, tor "Half a Million of Money," £40; Mrs. Oliphant, for "Agnes," £20; Florence Marryat, for "Love's Colubict," £25, and Mr. Charles Lever, for "Luttrell of Arran," £30. These payments do not cover the right of translation, but only of remplication in the quoted, mentions a few particulars illustrating the Arran, 250. These payments do not cover the right of translation, but only of republication in the briginal language. Still the sales must be very large, for the books are highly popular not only on the continent of Europe but also in the United States. Of "Our Mutnal Friend," Tanchnitz printed the first year 4,500 copies, and of Carlyle's "Frederick" 2,000.

A Mr. W. H. Barber died the other day in London at the age of 61, whose binery, once famous in periodical and pamphlet literature, furnishes almost the odical and pamphlet literature, furnishes almost the only instance of an innocent man obtaining compensation from the British nation for a wrongful conviction before a criminal tribunal. About twenty-five years ago a man named Fletcher committed an extraordinary series of frauds on the Bank of England by means of forged wills and other documents dealing with unclaimed dividends. He had confederates whom he employed to personate legatees and witnesses to pretended signatures. Mr. Barber, who was employed by Fletcher in the customary way, to prove the forged wills and transact other business in connection with them, was convicted in 1844 at the Old Baily as an accomplice; but was subsequently proved, both by the separate and independent confessions of Fletcher and all his accomplices, and by numerous collateral evidences, to have acted in the numerous collateral evidences, to have acted in the business with bone fides. Barber's case is ably set forth in a volume from the pen of Mr. E. H. Thomas, on the Judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench, on Mr. Barber's application for his certificate; but the romance of Mr. Barber's life must be sought in the romance of mr. Barber's life must be sought in the picturesque and touching narrative of his sufferings, which, under the title of "Transported for Life," was published by him in Household Words in July and August, 1852. A pamphlet on the Barber case, entitled "The Royal Pardon Vindicated," was also published by the late Sir George Stephen. Mr. Barber obtained £5,000 damages from Parliament

An American edition of Shaw's "Choice Specimen's of English Literature," prepared by Professor Benjamin N. Martin, D. D., of the University of the City of New-York, has been published by Sheldon & Co., as a school and college text-book. It was intended by Mr. Shaw as a companion volume for his "History of English Literature," and was given to the world in London under the editorship of Dr. William Smith, LL.D., whose share in its arrangement we do not profess to understand. Dr. Martin's task in preparing the American edition embraced both addition and subtraction. He has added specimens from about twenty authors whom Shaw and Bmith omitted—among them Sir Isaac Newton, Algerson Sidney (whose name he mis-spells Sydney), John Poster, Mrs. Browning, Hugh Miller, Macaulay, Hazlitt, and Hood; he has abridged some of the extracts, omitted some which seemed to him either too long or too broad, and substituted other specimens more suitable; and has made various other changes, the extent and value of which cannot be understood without a minute comparison of the two editions, which at present we have no opportunity of instituting. As a collection of specimens, the work is remarkably comprehensive; but the specimens are too short to be of much value in connection with the study of literary history; they are not always so chosen as to exhibit the characteristics of their authors' style; and they suffer by separation from the work which they were designed to illustrate. Professor Martin, we believe, would have performed a far more useful task if he had incorporated the "Specimens" with the text of the "History." They try now to serve both as a reading-book and a handbook of literature, and do not serve well as either. Benjamin N. Martin, D. D., of the University of the

ARE SERRING
TO CONVERT OBSTACLE INTO OFFORTUNITY, AND WREST

ARE REGARDFULLY INSCRIBED BY THEIR AUTHOR. This Book is a collection of the series of articles originally published in The New York Ledger, hearing as now the title "liecollections of a Busy Life," revised, and in part rewritten by the author, and enriched by the addition of much original matter. It is believed that these authorographical reminingences will be not only entertaining and attractive, but of permanent value to all students of the times we live in; forming, as they do, a record of the inner life and inspiration of one who has actively shared in the many strange intellectual and political phases through which America has gone during the past thirty years of intense vitality. Mr. Greeley himself gives the best indication of their nature, when he says: "I shall never write anything else into which I shall put so much of myself, my experiences, notious convictions, and modes of thought as these Becollections. I give, with small reserve, my mental history."

In his "Apology "Mr. Greeley says: "I hope to be spared to write hereafter a fuller and more systematic exposition of Political Economy from the Protectionist standpoint," and I do not expect henceforth to write or print any other work whatever. If then, my friends will accept write or print any other work whatever. If then, my friends will accept which explained this book as my account of all of myself that is worth their consideration; and i will cherish the hope that some bortion, at least, of its contents embody lessons of persistency and patience which will not have been set forth in vain."

BANKING AND FINANCIAL.

THE FIRST MORTGAGE BONDS OF THE WESTERN PACIFIC RAILROAD COMPANY possess features calculated to commend them especially to careful and prudent investors, capitalists, and institutions having money to invest and holders of Government bonds desiring to realize the premium thereon.

The Loan is unusually light in proportion to the value of the property which is mortgaged to secure it, being but $2,800,000, while the road and equipments are worth at least $10,000,000. The road is COMPLETED, so that the entire security is a reality, and no portion of it contingent and prospective. It is in successful and profitable operation, already demonstrating its power to earn the annual interest on the bonds several times over. It is under careful, able, and honorable management.

Price 90 and accrued interest from July 1, in currency. Bonds $1,000 each. Interest payable January and July, in the City of New-York. Principal and interest payable in gold. In purchases made before January 1, there is an advantage of about ? of 1 per cent to be realized from the premium on the accrued interest, which the purchaser pays in currency, and will receive in gold. FISK & HATCH, Bankers. DES MOINES VALLEY RAILROAD EIGHT PER CENT LAND GRANT MORTGAGE BONDS .- The undersigned offer for sale a limited amount of the above-named bonds. They are receivable at par by the Company in payment for any of its lands sold at scheduled prices. The lands are pledged for the redemption of the bonds, and consist of 466,000 acres of choice locations, situated mostly in the Des Moines Valley,

Iowa, and are estimated to realize enough to nearly or quite cancel the whole issue of bonds, in addition to the security of the road. Price, 90. For further particulars, inquire of CLARK, DODGE & Co., 51 Wall-st,
